

Expanding the range of station ownership is total insanity. Our information system in this country is already owned by too few individuals to make the accessibility of different viewpoints, those other than mainstream, almost impossible. How long will it be before we get all of our information from one source? This is not the kind of world conducive to positive growth for it wipes out any chance of alternate ideas that may not support the agenda of large corporations.

Thank you for your time.